

"It's not always a smoker's cough"

If you have a new or changing cough or breathing problems, tell your doctor.

Smoking is the most common cause of lung cancer, but around 1 in 5 cases occur in non-smokers. Anyone can develop lung cancer.

Tell your doctor if you have any of these symptoms:

- Coughing up blood
- A cough that lasts for three weeks, or a long standing cough that gets worse or changes
- Repeated chest infections
- Becoming more short of breath, tired or lacking energy
- Unexplained weight loss
- Persistent shoulder pain

These symptoms might be due to lung cancer and the earlier it's found, the sooner treatment can be started.
